

Data Sharing and Consent

How company documents are shared with investors

The principle

A document reaches an investor because the founder decided it should. LIVE makes the introduction. It does not hold a standing right to circulate any company's material.

Per investor access

Access is granted to a named investor email, not to a public link. It can be withdrawn at any moment, and withdrawal takes effect immediately, including on links already sent.

What is logged

Who opened, when, for how long, and which pages. The log is visible to the founder and to the LIVE programme manager. It is disclosed to the investor before they open anything.

Retention

Access logs are retained for the life of the cohort plus twelve months. Company documents remain the company's property throughout and are removed on request.
