

Matching Investment Program

How LIVE introduces its portfolio to investors

The programme

The Matching Investment Program connects fundraise ready portfolio companies with an investor network of more than fifty venture funds, alongside three months of mentorship and a demo pitch session.

How an introduction works today

LIVE sends the company's deck and supporting documents to the relevant investors, usually by email attachment, and then waits. Whether the investor opened it, how long they spent, which page they stopped on and which of the fifty read anything at all is not visible to anyone.

What this room changes

Every profile and every company room is shared as a link rather than an attachment. LIVE sees who opened, what they read, how long they stayed and where they stopped. A follow up goes to the investor who read the financials twice, not to all fifty.
