What Loopwise does

Loopwise reads the order and event data an Indian D2C brand already has and shows which customers came back, from which channel and after which first product. Then it names the change worth making this week.

Where the business stands

ARR, July 2026	Rs 1.94 crore
Paying brands	68
Net revenue retention	127 percent
Logo churn, trailing twelve months	9 percent
Average contract value	Rs 2.85 lakh a year
Gross margin	81 percent
CAC payback	9 months
Monthly burn	Rs 12.6 lakh

Why brands stay

The weekly action email is opened by 71 percent of brands, and expansion comes from adding sibling brands inside the same parent company.

Risks we would raise ourselves

Risk 1	Sixty eight brands is still small, and the top five are 22 percent of ARR.
Risk 2	D2C marketing budgets move with funding cycles, which are tight right now.
Risk 3	Shopify and the large marketing platforms could bundle basic retention analytics.
